Parish Office Closed

Lord God,
We thank you for the brave men and women who answered the call to serve and defend our freedom.
Please bless our veterans with peace, heal their visible and invisible wounds, and watch over their families.
Guide and protect those who are still in uniform today.
In Your name we pray.
Amen.

The Organ Music in Today's Liturgy

Today's prelude music begins with a majestic paraphrase of the great hymn, For All the Saints by English composer, professor, and organist Arthur Hutchings (1908-1989), and then segues into an introspective setting of the Scandinavian hymn, Who is this Host Arrayed in White?, by American composer and organist John Ferguson (1941-2025). Both hymn texts express in different ways the scripture from Revelation that is today's First Reading. The postlude, by Johann Sebastian Bach (1685-1750), is an exuberant settings of the German chorale Valet wir ich dir geben. The hymn tune is familiar to us in another guise (let me know if you recognize it), but its words complement today's solemnity:

In heaven it is good to dwell, / My longing is set on what is above;
There God will reward forever / The person who serves Him here.

For more information, please ask our music director, Heather Fuller-Johnson, or our organist, Joseph Schubert.
