PASTOR'S COLUMN

Seminarians Assigned to the Parish and School

By Fr. Kyle Ratuiste

This year we are privileged to have four seminarians from our local college seminary assigned to our parish and school as part of their pastoral formation. Bishop White Seminary, located next to Gonzaga University is, in fact, the only seminary in Washington State. (Meanwhile, Mount Angel Seminary in Oregon is the only other seminary in the whole Pacific Northwest.) Currently, 22 seminarians from dioceses across the West Coast attend Bishop White Seminary, including seven of Spokane's 19 seminarians. I want to make sure you know about the four men assigned to our parish and school.

Ezra Scott is a Spokane seminarian who hails from Walla Walla. He is in his third year of formation at Bishop White and working on his Philosophy degree at GU. He has been assigned to our school to teach in Sister Francis Marie's fifth grade classroom once a week.

Ezra Scott

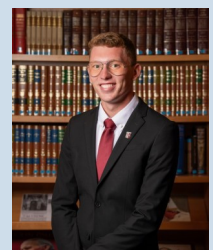

Jakob Flores from the Diocese of Orange (California), Peter McIntyre from the Archdiocese of Portland, and James Pihl (pronounced "peel") from the Diocese of Baker (Oregon) are all in the Cor Christi Program at Bishop White. Cor Christi is our specialized first-year formation program that gives new seminarians a solid foundation for the spiritual depth, intellectual rigors, and pastoral service they will encounter in their later years of seminary. All three of them have been assigned to visit the classrooms of our school once a week. Additionally, they have been assigned to assist at the 10:00 a.m. Mass on Sundays. They will help with roles such as greeting, reading, and serving. I've also instructed them to get to know the parish community by remaining after Mass for coffee and donuts.

Jakob Flores

Peter McIntyre

James Pihl

Please pray for these seminarians and try to get to know them during this year.
